To Whom It May Concern:

RE: Greg Lemoine

Please accept this letter for a recommendation for Greg Lemoine to attend the John Hopkins School of Education Doctoral program. Greg is a colleague that I have worked with since August 2016 although I have known Greg for the past year as he was hired by me at Dhahran Hills School. With this in mind, I completed an extensive interview process and a thorough background investigation was completed for his employment with Saudi Aramco Expatriate Schools. He has shown the skills to be successful in your program in the time I have known him and in what has been shared with me through the recruiting process, thus my recommendation for him to attend your program.

I have found Greg to be extremely personable and professional. While he comes to our school with a tremendous amount of experience as an international educator, I have been most impressed with his willingness to be a learner and engage in a new curriculum, to try differing teaching practices than being implemented at his previous school and to adjust to a different age of student that he has worked with in the past. He has done this through hard work, commitment, and a willingness to take the time to complete the task at hand. Further, he has done this with a sense of humor and an ability to be a team player. Academically he has presented himself as well spoken, thoughtful and intelligent. With a background in information technology as well as curriculum and instruction, I feel extremely comfortable in stating that he has shown skills to be a creative thinker, a collaborator, and a 21st century learner.

In closing, I fully support Greg in his pursuit of further education. Living internationally can be difficult but I have been extremely impressed with the way that he has handled the transition to Saudi Arabia. During these times of change, I have found that the skills of others can be easily measured and in watching Greg handle the past six months in a new country, a new grade, and a new curriculum, I offer this recommendation. He has handled this with ease and with attributes of a colleague that I would like on my team, thus my recommendation to your program.

Sincerely,
