ROYAL GOLF CLUB
Bahrain

HOME OF THE ANNUAL
CAUSEWAY CLASSIC

Just across the Saudi - Bahrain causeway bridge is a great golf course. Not only can you play on a semi-professional golf course, you can eat a "Baconbuddy" breakfast sandwich before golfing and drink beer before, during AND after.

THE CLASSIC

Four years ago, four party animals decided we need to have more than one golf tournament in the year. Brekke, Denker, March, and Magnin founded the first annual classic. This was the fourth. A record of eighteen foursomes signed up to compete for SARS 3400 ($1000) and have fun playing 18 holes of tournament golf outside of the Kingdom we all temporarily call home.

BAHRAIN

DROP A LOAD OF CASH ON A WEEKEND OF DEBAUCHERY.
WHAT HAPPENS IN BAHRAIN STAYS IN BAHRAIN.

Matt, Jerry, Greg, and I were teamed up to play the Causeway Classic this year. Matt was the dutiful team captain and carried the team. I was the “goto” first putter so the rest of the guys could get a good “read” on the green. The rules of the tournament required our team to take at least three drives off the tee from each player. Naturally, that was a lot of pressure on all of us. I can only drive about half as far as Matt. The other two, Greg and Jerry, fell somewhere between the two of us. No matter. We had a blast. I think I had the most fun of all the players. I loved it. Watching Matt smash the hell out of a golf ball and getting to know some more company colleagues over a few beers and golf is always a great opportunity. Fun was had.

PRACTICE @ HOME?

Sometimes, our band just likes to have fun. We decided to surprise Ian at his house for a Sunday night practice. His wife was in on it of course!

We just set everything up in his living room. After practicing a set list of songs that Ian chose, we were welcomed to a full dinner and two birthday cakes. This is the kind of stuff that keeps us sane while we live in the desert.

Learning

Now that we have more Chromebooks in the hands of our students, this is a more common sight. It has taken this school system many years but we are slowly starting to jump into the 21st Century.

“Walk the walk and talk the talk.” I spend a lot of time on the computer coding, reading, typing, writing, and learning.

Why not? That’s what I do to keep the time.

I recently signed up for a coding course that meets twice a week in the evening. I am learning how to code in Java.

Quite a lot of fun.

When I’m not at the Hobby Farm writing my book or coding in class, I might be found at the Carlton Lounge. No, it’s not like the Carlton that was in Green Bay so many years ago.

This is just a coffee shop on camp that I can go to for hours at a time and work on my computer.

I am still in awe of the size of our school. Whether it is assemblies of 1200 students or staff meetings of 150, I am still in awe.
